SPOTLIGHT ON SPORTS

By JACK KEENE

George Chip, former world's middleweight champion and one of the hardest men the ring has ever produced, wants to come back long enough to meet Young Stripling, Georgia schoolboy star.

There is no doubt but what, if Chip were to approach his old-time form, he would give a southern real facinor. But the Newcastle man is too old. One of the real fighters of the ring, however, and "white" as can be.

The boy who appears now to be the most logical contender for the bantamweight crown held by Abe Goldstein is Bud Taylor. This lad from Terre Haute, Ind., has won a name for himself against a row of good opponents in the west.

Matt Finkel and Tommy McGinty, Cleveland promoters, are so sure of it that they have signed him for one of the bouts in a show at their new Olympic arena, on the outskirts of the city, June 27, and figure that his next appearance will be against Goldstein, if he can get the champion to meet him. He will tackle Al Ziemer in the June 27 bout. Ziemer is the lad whom Johnny Kilbane, ex-featherweight champ, prepped for a ring career.

It's rumored now around New York that John Ringling, the circus impresario, will eventually become the real owner of the New York Giants. According to the rumors, the sale of some of his Giant stock by Harry Hempstead to "Fuzzy" Anderson of St. Louis, a warm personal friend of Ringling's, was the first move in that direction. Anderson's frequent trips with Ringling in Sarasota, Fla., last spring while the Giants were training there lends strength to such reports.

Ringling, in addition to his circus activities, is interested with Tex Hitchcock in promoting fights in and around New York city. In event that Ringling does finally come into control of a big league club his methods of advertising his new "show" no doubt will be interesting. Wonder if he will bill his team as "the greatest baseball show on earth; a marvelous, stupendous, awe-inspiring spectacle," etc.?

He'll have to have Nick Altrock for his clown if he wants to make the show complete.

Art Fletcher and the Philly bosses would like to find out if there is a germ somewhat similar to the boll weevil killing off their outfielders as fast as they get 'em. Last spring seven gardeners were taken south with the team.

They were Williams, Mokane, Powell, Walker, Henrich, Leach, and Cliff Lee. Now only two remain with the club, Williams and Mokane.

Powell, obtained by trade from the Braves, was turned back with a bum leg. Nixon, sent by the Braves to replace him, quit the game rather than play in Philadelphia. Henrich and Leach weren't ready for the show. They were sent to the New York-Pennsylvania League.

And now Cliff Lee has been sold to the Reds—although the deal is all tangled up.

The Phils got Harker for Walker. The former is playing the third position in the outfield. But just how long the present combination will last no one knows.

Joe Evers, brother of the White Sox boss and veteran shortfielder, is playing a whale of a game at third base for the Montpelier team in the Quebec, Ontario and Vermont League, according to word from that section.

You recall the Brave-Giant trade last winter, of course. Dave Baneroff, Bill Cunningham and Casey Stengel were traded by McGraw for Joe Oeschger, Hank Gowdy and Bill Southworth. Most folk figured at the time that the Giants were pulling a poor trade with getting Stengel's impression that McGraw himself explained
